Pillsbury's CHEVRON CASSEPOLE

It's tops for taste... packed with wartime nourishment... backed by GUARANTEED BAKING! If you don't agree that Pillsbury's Best gives you better baking than any other all-purpose flour—with this or any good recipe—Pillsbury's Cooking Service, Minneapolis, pays you back the cost of all your recipe ingredients!

Pillsbury's CHEVRON CASSEPOLE

TEMPERATURE: 425° F. Serves 6. TIME: about 20 minutes

- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1/2 cup vegetable liquid
- 1/2 cup strained orange juice*
- 1 cup cooked, diced meat
- 1/2 cup cooked, diced carrots
- 1/2 cup cooked, diced celery
- 1 cup cooked, diced potatoes
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- Dash of cloves

*If preferred, substitute additional meat stock or vegetable liquid.

1. Pan-fry onion in fat until tender and brown. 2. Add flour and seasonings; mix well. 3. Add and combined meat stock, vegetable liquid, and orange juice gradually, stirring constantly. Cook until thick and smooth. 4. Add combined meat and vegetables. 5. Turn into 9-inch pie plate, cover with:

CHEVRON SEED CRUST

- 1 1/2 cups sifted PILLSBURY'S BEST ENRICHED FLOUR
- 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder (or 1 1/2 teaspoons double-acting)
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup shortening (depending on desired richness)
- 1/2 cup milk

1. Sift flour once, measure; add baking powder, salt; sift again. Add celery seed and mix well. 2. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse meal. 3. Add milk, mixing until all flour is dampened. 4. Turn out on lightly floured board; knead slightly to smooth surface. Roll dough to fit top of pie plate. 5. Place over filling. Trim and flute edge. Score top into 4 sections with knife blade; make gash in center to allow escape of steam. 6. Bake in hot oven. 7. Garnish with pimiento strips, as illustrated.

THE GREATEST GUESSING GAME

Publication of the federal government's budget estimates for the 12-month period beginning next July has furnished the public an imposing array of multiphased figures to talk about, but the weakness of the budget system is especially evident in wartime.

The budget is a guess made six months after the beginning of one fiscal year about something that will not begin for another six months and will not be ended until 18 months have elapsed. With few exceptions, budget guesses in recent years and particularly under the Roosevelt administration have been wide of the mark. Expenditures have been consistently underestimated. Revenues sometimes have been overestimated, sometimes underestimated. Except as general guides to policy intention the actual figures have been of slight value; they merely indicated which way the fiscal wind was blowing.

At present, of course, it is still blowing strongly in the direction of astronomical spending to achieve tremendous results in the war. Before the war, the practice of deficit financing already was well established, though the deficits which used to cause apprehension in the depression now seem insignificant by comparison. In that respect, perhaps the most significant comparison appearing in the new budget is the fact the anticipated revenue of approximately 41 billion dollars is more than the value of all the goods and services produced by all the people of the United States in 1933. Federal expenditures then were in the neighborhood of four billion dollars a year, approximately one-tenth of the value of goods and services. Today, federal expenditures stand at approximately 100 billion a year, with less than half covered by federal revenue, yet federal revenue represents almost one-third of the value of goods and services produced in a year's time.

The implications of this relationship between the people's efforts and government finance are not entirely concerned with the war emergency. The trend toward ever-larger public spending in relation to income was well defined before the beginning of the war. The question of arresting it when the war is over already is looming. There exists within the government itself, an influential group of individuals whose ideas about the handling of public money call for indefinite continuation of deficit financing. To a large extent they have been dominant in government councils under the New Deal, and they intend to continue their influence, if possible.

Ultimately, the people will decide what they want—the same people now preparing to close their tax accounts with the government for 1943—the same people now feeling the effect of a rate of government spending and taxation which takes great bites out of their earnings, yet is taking only a fraction of what is needed, according to President Roosevelt, who is asking Congress to authorize at least another eight billion dollars' worth of new taxes. The budget, itself, is too complex, too stupendous to be grasped, but its meaning to individuals is as plain as the taxes now being paid, the heavier taxes soon to be paid and the unpaid deficit that will be passed along to future generations who will add the unpaid balance to new debts of their own.

IDEAS RULE THE WORLD

It never has been too early to wonder whether military victory over Germany, Japan and like-minded governments will subdue the ideas which motivated them. The Japanese claim their concept of Asia for Asiatics—i. e., Asia for Japanese exploitation of Asiatics—has been planted so firmly that they ultimately must win, regardless of what happens in the immediate future. Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, called attention of a meeting of educators in Cincinnati last week to the post-war problem of the young German fanatics reared under the Nationalist Socialist regime in Germany.

"No less dangerous than tanks or guns," warned Lord Halifax, "are those forces which, in the words of the old prayer, 'Assault and hurt the soul,' and not less necessary for the future is the exorcism of these forces from the world. It will not be enough simply to get rid of false teaching. Even assuming that we can gradually do something to cleanse the minds of these young Nazis, our work will be only half done if we leave behind a vacuum, that empty house into which other and worse devils may enter."

The British ambassador's warning is peculiarly appropriate for Americans, who are committed by social and political tradition to complete belief in the supreme power of education to stabilize a good society. Yet, for reasons which seem to spring from some kind of a national inferiority complex, Americans lately have been dangerously close to surrendering their own confidence in education. They have been expressing fear of what the Communists may teach, for instance, without admitting to themselves that in the realm of ideas there is nothing more potent than the idea of freedom as exemplified in the progress of America. Its impact has been felt for a century and a half throughout the world and today is still the unfulfilled hope of millions of dissatisfied human beings outside the United States.

In the great project of appealing to men's intelligence and imagination, Americans are as well qualified for success as any of their competitors—better qualified than most. Our only serious lack is confidence in ourselves.

We must beware of trying to build a society in which nobody counts for anything except a politician or an official, a society where enterprise gains no reward, and thrift no privileges.—Prime Minister Churchill.

"No, thank you" has lost many a good buttercake.—Lancashire proverb.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, January 16

SUNDAY'S horoscope points up the probability of much festivity, gaiety and celebration rather than any attempt at a serious or material contemplation of certain splendid opportunities for advancement, progress and fulfilled ambitions that are due to loom on the horizon. Those disposed to step up the more worthy and enduring aims and aspirations are bound to reap rich rewards and not forfeit the romance, happiness and restrained conviviality of benign occasions.

Honors Ahead

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of promotion, honors, preferment and happy culminations of many ambitious hopes and desires. Although there may be parties, celebrations and festive occasions making the year a memorable one, it is a time for reaching to high goals, not forgetting the gratitude and generosity due to unusual benefices of luck and good fortunes. Certain emotional restraints are recommended. Shun impetuous moves.

A child born on this day will be blessed with many talents, abilities and personal graces and attractions to insure a prolific, worthy and happy life.

For Monday, January 17

This may prove to be a continuation of prior occasions of hospitality, merriment and celebration of a glamorous or joyful event, in which prolonged merriment or indulgence may demand repose, relaxation and rest, after the high tempo of conviviality. Physical and mental depressions are likely to incite some emotional, or impetuous behavior of regrettable nature. In serious affairs, use precaution and do not overlap in sudden surprise.

Difficult Year

Those whose birthday it is may have a difficult and perplexing year, in which the urge for action swings between the erratic, tempestuous and reckless and an inner yearning for dead inertia, for the static or stagnant. To strike a happy medium between opposite poles may bring a surprising benefit, born of clever work, ingenuity or an especial skill. Strike a balance between extremes for attaining happy denouement. Have regard for health, reputation and funds.

If It Is Your Birthday

A child born on this day may be torn between two polar opposites of conduct, impulse and emotions, making it difficult to understand or manage. A strict education may serve to bring balance and produce usual accomplishments.

We need lieutenants around 19, 20 and 21, and battalion commanders around 25. Jungle fighting is the toughest there is, and old men cannot stand the strain.—Capt. David N. Marshall, back from Munda battle.

The people in this country are not really keenly aware of the seriousness of this war. They are thinking in terms of little sacrifices and inconveniences. What this country needs is a good bombing.—Maj. John S. Garrenton, army chaplain back from Asia.

Every nation has the government that it deserves.—de Maistre, 1811.

The Effect of Hot Baths Discussed

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A CORRESPONDENT wants to know whether the Turkish Bath is harmful to high blood pressure or low blood pressure.

My first reaction to this is where is he going to find a Turkish bath. I presume a few specimens of this almost extinct ornament to the regular life of the Gay Nineties still exist in the underground passages of decaying old hotels, but they rarely for rarity with the Dodo.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

I remember them. A double row of cots in the hot room, occupied by large gentlemen adorned with towels (of course, Turkish) about their middles, reading The Police Gazette and quaffing an occasional glass of water brought by an attendant who was invariably called Mack. And the bather would leave the establishment reeking with his sense of virtue, feeling that he had made all obligations to Hygiea, and prepared to light candles on the altar of Bacchus.

Long Hot Baths

Them wicked days is gone forever, in most localities. The American domestic bath tub killed the Turkish bath, just as certainly as if the two countries had gone to war. And the American hot bath is only a less glorified and usually less prolonged Turkish bath, so we can apply the question to hot bathing. And many people with high blood pressure take long hot baths with the idea that they are taking a cure.

The only feature of the Turkish bath not reproduced by the American hot tub is the hot air room where often the temperature was up to 150 to 170 degrees Fahrenheit.

Perhaps the greatest fallacy of the curative value of the hot bath is that there is some virtue in sweating. You "get the poisons out." This is a pure delusion. Sweat does not relieve the kidneys except of water and salt excretion. No urea or uric acid or other uric poisons are excreted in the sweat, except in traces. Garlic is, but garlic is considered healthy. It used to be customary to sweat patients with kidney disease on the verge of uremia, but then some chemists analyzed the sweat and found no deleterious substance in it—only water and salt.

To answer the question on the effect on high blood pressure, in a large medical library I could find no account of the Turkish bath except some that went back before blood pressure instrument were in general use.

An authoritative recent statement of effect of hot bathing on high blood pressure is that it does more harm than good. Of course it temporarily relaxes the arteries and causes a drop in blood pressure. But this may be too rapid, and may slow the circulation in small arteries so that clots form with resulting angina and apoplexy.

Of course, during the reign of Benjamin Harrison, the then Captains of Industry used to die like flies in Turkish baths. Undertakers

"Bandits at one o'clock..."

JOHN SMITH, Lieutenant, U.S.A.A.F., adjusted his throttles, nervously fingered the stabilizer trimmers, peered through the shattered windshield of a fluttering Flying Fortress, and thought grim thoughts on the way home from Berlin.

"Two motors shot out, five of the crew wounded, half the tail gone...and I've got to bring Baby home, huh? Nuts! Suppose we bail out right here—they say the Germans aren't too bad on prisoners—at least we'll still be alive—wonder what Mom is doing now..."

"Navigator to pilot...near the coast now, watch for enemy fighters...let's get home!"

"Pilot to navigator...don't you like it here?"

The intercom buzzed off. Cold sweat popped unnoticed on John Smith's forehead. Fighters! One Focke-Wulf would be enough—all ammunition spent, two motors gone...

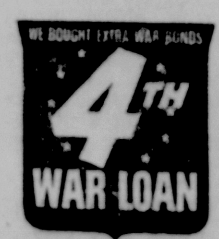

"Thoughts again. 'We can't go down now—this is the year that's going to turn the trick, the one that counts—pitch in now and we'll get home sooner—come on, baby, take us home!'"

The intercom crackled. "Bandits at one o'clock, Focke-Wulfs—lots of them!"

The communique merely said, "One of our bombers failed to return."

Over there, they know this is the year of climax—they won't fail us—will you fail them? Your job is simple—work to win the war, buy War Bonds regularly—and buy more War Bonds, at least one extra $100 Bond now. You'll get your money back, with interest. But right now you've got to lend it $200, $300, $500, all you can, for this is the climax year! The committee where you work is counting on you to do your part—don't fail!

In your heart, can you tell John Smith of a sacrifice that should stop you from buying more Bonds?

"THAT KEITH WOMAN"

by PHYLLIS MOORE GALLAGHER

CHAPTER FORTY
Peter and I wandered deep in the dark solarium and stood there thinking. Great drops of rain began to fall like leaden plummet on the patio. We could hear servants shuffling down windows. The lightning flared balefully, the thunder was ominous. There seemed to be a warning in that incessant noise outside, in the rain that was now pouring in sheets on the solarium panes.

"Peter," I began. "I think I know how to solve this case. It will be a risk, but I can't see any peace for any of us until the murderer is behind bars."

I told him what I intended to do and Peter said thickly: "No! No! I won't let you do that."

"But the way I plan it, there wouldn't be much danger. Not too much, anyway."

"No," Peter almost shouted, and took me by the arm and led me to drawing room.

Just as we reached the arched doorway there was another loud clap of thunder, and all the lights in the house went out. I heard Gladys Newcomb scream, and I saw Sandra's face lined against that darkness by another vivid flash of lightning. It was a horrible face at that moment. I couldn't have believed Sandra Keith could look like that.

I clung to Peter, conscious of movement all around us, of Sergeant Hornblower coming in from the library, whispered voices, a door opening and Heath asking in a loud voice what had happened now.

A bulk brushed past me and my blood froze, but no hands reached out to touch my throat. Presently the lights came on, and there was Hornblower with a burnt-out fuse in his hands. I looked around the room, holding my breath, but there was no dead body in our midst.

Promptly the drawing room lights went off again, and Hornblower told us all to go into the dining room. We did, gathering around the big table there. I looked at everyone carefully. These white, tired, strained faces—and one of them was a murderer. This long horrible week had changed us all perceptibly.

"No one is to leave this house tonight," Sergeant Hornblower ordered. "Miss Keith, can you make arrangements to take care of everyone?" Sandra said wanly, that she could.

Hornblower was still talking, but I had ceased looking at him. I wondered if I went over to Marvin Eustace and said suddenly: "You murdered Pamela!" would I see an utter stranger with blazing eyes that were white and venomous, and lips that were knife-thin and cruel and murderously ruthless?

I wondered what Gladys would do if I accused: "You and Reginald murdered Pamela together, and then you murdered Reginald because he knew too much."

I closed my eyes then and saw the words, bright as letters in a neon-tube, running through my mind: PAMELA WAS KILLED BY A SINGLE MURDEROUS BLOW; REGINALD'S HEAD WAS PUMMELED. I kept my eyes closed, seeing the dining room as it had been on the night of Pamela's dinner party; Pam at the foot of the table; Wayne Courtney at the head, myself, Elsie Eustace and Earle Pines on the right; Gladys Newcomb, Marvin Eustace and Pamela Castagna on the left. The only clue to the murderer was right there at that dinner table, and I should have seen it days ago. It was such a little thing, and yet it was so very important.

Suddenly I began to shiver. I KNEW WHO MURDERED PAMELA KEITH. I KNEW! But I couldn't prove what I knew unless I tried the experiment I had told Peter about in the solarium! And I was afraid to attempt that. I don't know just what I would have decided if the telephone had not intervened.

Heath answered the call and said: "For you, Miss Randolph." I crossed over to the phone in the corner of the dining room, trying not to show how my legs were trembling. When I picked up the golden instrument, I saw that my fingers were shaking. Purposely, I made my voice loud, for I was getting an idea; a terrible idea.

It was Dad on the phone, as I'd thought it might be.

"Well, so there's where you are, are you? Taking care of Sandra, I presume. Well, just wanted to check up on you, honey. Guess it's all right you're over there since the murderer is now behind bars. I read all the papers. The boy must be insane. Well, no use going into that now. Look honey, where is my laundry? I want a clean night-shirt!"

I held my breath. This phone call was giving me the opening I needed and I stood there thinking furiously.

"Oh-h, yes?" I asked.

"Did the laundry come today, Letty?" Dad asked.

"Oh, now I understand, Marcella Kingsley. Yes, of course."

"Marcella Kingsley? What do you think I said?"

"Oh-h, on the roof," I declared, and it wasn't difficult to make my voice sound frightened for the benefit of my audience in the dining room—and the murderer!

I was panicked and Dad was fit to be tied. "ON THE ROOF! Letty Randolph, why the blinkey-blank did you put my night-shirt on the roof?"

"Look, I can't explain anything now. I'll tell everything tomorrow. Clem," I said.

"Clem! Letty, what is the matter with you? THIS IS YOUR FATHER. Who are you talking to?"

"Someone in this room."

"Oh," he said placated. "Where is a night-shirt, honey?"

"I don't know," I said. "See you tomorrow."

Dad was growing as I cradled the instrument. I turned and, out of the tails of my eyes, I saw the murderer—those wide dilated eyes, the hand moving up to the throat and the lips thinly compressed, as if breathing was as difficult as inhaling threads of wool. My stomach contracted with a miserable feeling of loathing and a dreadful stirring fear.

I fixed my gaze on Sergeant Hornblower then. He was swollen with suppressed excitement.

"Well," he said—and I knew he expected me to tell him what I had promised to tell someone tomorrow morning. "Well, Miss Randolph?"

Thunder rumbled overhead. "Is there something you wanted to ask me, Sergeant?" I queried.

"Something I wanted to ask. His face grew a violent red. "That was Clem Barkley on The Tribune you were talking to, wasn't it? What about Marcella Kingsley on the roof? What are you and Clem up to? A scoop for that paper?"

"I wasn't talking with Clem," I said truthfully. "I was talking to Dad. He wants to know where his night-shirts are."

"At four in the morning, Miss Randolph?"

"Dad doesn't like to sleep raw at any time."

"You called him Clem?"

"Did I? Clem must be thinking about me," I said, and pretended to yawn. Then asked: "May I have the yellow room tonight, Sandra?"

"Why, of course," she said, and her voice was somehow like the flick of a snake's tongue. Quick! Sharp! The edge of a nervous hiss in it!

I turned and walked, stiff and erect, out of the room and up the stairs. I know now how a condemned man feels on that short, ghastly stretch from the death-house to the chair. My mind revolved with thoughts. I had fixed myself.

Only the murderer knew that Marcella Kingsley had any connection with Pamela's murder and Reginald's. And I'd talked about Marcella over the phone; it sounded as if I knew and was going to spill it—and the murderer had been watching me, fear glazed in those wild eyes.

I wondered if Peter didn't understand what I was up to? If the telephone conversation had gone over his head? I had outlined this plan to Peter and he'd told me I couldn't do it and I'd said I wouldn't.

Of course Peter got it; he wasn't obtuse. Still, I wished I'd caught his eyes somehow.

The wind blew its fury against the house, panes rattled. Somewhere near the roof there was a long sigh, born of ice and rain and wind.

And death, I thought. Death!

I lay in bed, feeling that any moment now—the next one—this very moment, perhaps—the door would open, slowly, stealthily, and someone else would be in the dark bedroom with me. Someone else and fear too; destroying terror reaching out to kill—to murder. To murder me.

It helped to know that Peter Gibson was in the adjoining bath, listening for the opening of that corridor door, ears strained for any intruder whose movements would be disciplined to silence.

My shadow creeping inexorably closer to me through the thick blackness.

A flash of lightning slit the black clouds, and thunder reverberated through this House of Death! My scalp prickled. Homicidal hands had reached into this house twice, crushing Pamela Keith and Reginald Fielding.

And tonight they would reach for me.

I was not alone in nerve-wracked wakefulness. I knew. Peter was awake. The murderer was awake. Wakefulness seemed to perch like a ghoul over the whole house, while the storm's banshees shrieked and so it seemed, wailed. No one slept. I was sure of it! I could almost feel the spectral impact of their restless, frightened minds against my own.

The antique grandfather clock on the second floor landing tolled a musical signal, booming a slow, deliberate, funeral half hour. Deadly doubts assailed me.

Had the catch on the bathroom door been released before I climbed into bed? If not, the door was locked on my bedroom side and Peter would not be able to reach me in time.

Surely I hadn't touched that catch, had I? But Peter must have checked the door carefully for his entrance.

Surely Peter had understood that phone conversation of mine, using Clem's name, talking about the roof and Marcella Kingsley—making the murderer realize I knew his identity.

Mission Unit Entertained at Rance Home

Sixteen members of the Alice Denny Missionary society of the Trinity Lutheran church met last evening at the home of Mrs. William Rance on W. Seventh st., with Mrs. Ida Wyss as a guest.

Mrs. A. J. Ryser was welcomed as a new member and plans were announced for the society to participate in the World Day of Prayer service Feb. 25 at the Episcopal church.

Miss Hilda Franke had charge of the devotion and the topic, "Each In His Own Tongue." Plans were also discussed for a mission study class to be held March 5 at the church. The book, "We Who Are America" (Kenneth D. Miller) will be studied.

Mrs. Harry Isonoff will have charge of the next meeting to be held Feb. 11 at the home of Mrs. Charles Davidson, 385 S. Lincoln ave.

Rita Mae Altomare Weds Ralph E. Mack

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Altomare, of 375 W. Pershing st. announce the marriage of their daughter, Rita Mae, to Petty Officer Third Class Ralph Eugene Mack, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mack of Alliance.

The marriage was solemnized Jan. 8 at St. Paul's rectory with Rev. Fr. J. Richard Gaffney officiating in the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a street-length dress of white with white jersey with orchid accessories. Her carriage was of orchids.

Miss Janet Lee Nemo of Salem served as maid-of-honor in a blue wool suit with which she wore fuchsia accessories and a shoulder corsage of pink roses.

Nicholas Altomare, brother of the bride, served as best man.

The bride's mother was attired in a blue jacket suit with black accessories and Mrs. Mack in a red suit with brown accessories. Both wore shoulder corsages of gardenias.

A wedding supper, served buffet style, was held at the bride's home following the ceremony. The table, covered with a white linen cloth, featured a tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Orchid tapers in a crystal candelabra on either side of the centerpiece completed the attractive decorations.

Miss Margaret Carr of Los Angeles, Calif., sister of Salem, and Richard Fallo and Fred Lyberger of Alliance were guests at the wedding.

Mrs. Mack will graduate from Salem High school in the class of 1944.

Petty Officer Mack attended Alliance High school and received his basic training at Great Lakes and attended cook and bakers school at the naval armory, Michigan City, Ind. He is now stationed at the U. S. Navy armed guard center, Brooklyn, N. Y., as a baker third class.

After a short trip Mrs. Mack returned to her home and Petty Officer Mack has returned to Brooklyn, N. Y.

'Chips,' Canine Hero Wins Third Citation

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—Chips, canine hero of Sicily who was enlisted in the Army after biting a Pleasantville, N. Y., garbage man, has been awarded the Distinguished Service cross for using similar tactics on the enemy, Dogs for Defense announced today.

Dogs for Defense, through which Chips went to war, said it had received a telegram from the Army quartermaster corps revealing that Chips was the first dog in the nation's history to receive the medal.

Maj. Gen. Lucian Truscott added the ribbon to Chips' collar which already carried the Silver Star and the Purple Heart—on Nov. 19, citing the three-year-old, 100-pound animal for "courageous action in single-handedly eliminating a dangerous machine gun nest and causing the surrender of its crew." By the award, Gen. Truscott waived a War department regulation which permitted animals to be cited for bravery, but prohibited actual award of the medal.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Wren of Pleasantville, owners of the dog, half husky with a strain of collie and shepherd, have not been notified formally of the honors being heaped on the animal, but letters from his handlers have kept them informed of Chips' exploits.

"I certainly wish I could get the War department to send the medals or the citation to us," Mrs. Wren said. "I know Chips and he breaks his collars all the time. He's probably lost his medals by this time."

Reams Democratic Governor Candidate

(By Associated Press)

TOLEDO, Jan. 15.—Declaring himself in favor of a fourth term for President Roosevelt, Frazier Reams, former internal revenue collector here, today announced his candidacy for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Thus, on his 47th birthday, Reams becomes the fourth to enter the Democratic race for governor. The others are former State Treasurer Clarence H. Knisley, former State Sen. Walter Baertschi of Toledo and Attorney Frank A. Dye of Columbus.

The name of Martin Coffey of Middletown, a former Ohio commander of the American Legion, entered the Democratic gubernatorial discussions for the first time yesterday when State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson announced at Columbus that he had been conferring with Coffey and other party leaders. Ferguson said a "large and influential number of Democrats favor Coffey as a candidate." Coffey did not comment.

Reams resigned his federal position Jan. 6.

In his formal declaration Reams criticized the $74,000,000 treasury surplus built up by Gov. John W. Becker, and promised if elected to give local governments "their just portion of the tax money."

Reams asked all Ohio Democrats to urge President Roosevelt to seek another term.

He also advocated protection and reconciliation of agriculture and labor and a minimum of governmental restraint after the war.

Yesterday in Columbus, State Rep. A. Lee Fair of Holmes county, obtained nominating petitions for Democratic secretary of state.

Fred C. Stiles of Marietta, obtained nominating petitions for Republican state auditor, and Herbert D. Mills of Dayton obtained petitions for Republican nomination for attorney general.

Small Business Aid Urged By Sen. Taft

(By Associated Press)

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) advocated today a revision of the laws governing taxation and extension of loans to small business as a post-war plan for development of small manufacturing and distribution concerns.

In an address prepared for delivery before the Boston City club, Taft said the current system of high taxation on capital gains and profits from investment in business had "dried up the sources" of capital for small business ventures, reducing amount of money available for these investments, and the number of individuals willing to risk their money with no hope of profit.

Declaring the growing public debt indicated little chance for a reduction in income taxes for years to come, Taft said he believed "it would be possible to repeal the capital gains tax except as against professional speculators and dealers in securities."

"If men were encouraged to finance small industries," he said, "and knew that they could sell out their interest when the industry was established without paying most of the proceeds to the government, there would be great incentive for such action."

"The capital gains tax has produced practically no money. The tax has tended to freeze capital and prevent its turnover."

Taft declared the securities and exchange commission had made public financing so expensive and difficult "as to be almost impossible."

SALEM, Ore.—A Salem hotel operator told police someone entered her hotel and stole 40 bed sheets, 40 pillow cases, 30 hand towels and several bedspreads. They were freshly laundered.

One hundred tons of pulpwood yield less than 30 tons of pulp.

Welcome these Soldiers of Victory!

THE "shock troops" of your Government's 4th War Loan Drive—a drive that must raise $14 billion to put the punch behind the punch that may make 1944 the date of doom for the Nazis—will soon call on you to buy your personal quota of Bonds. For, of the $14 billion that must be raised in this Drive, $5.5 billion worth must come from individuals.

Welcome these American men and women—5 million of them—who are not only buying their share of Bonds but are giving their time to call on you, personally.

Every office, every plant, every home, every individual in America has a quota to meet. Your personal quota is at least one extra $100 Bond. That's above your regular Bond buying.

If possible, buy your extra Bonds during this drive at the plant or office where you work. A volunteer Bond worker will sell you there. Otherwise, welcome him to your home when he calls. Or find one in the thousands of retail stores all over the United States. They want to find you—you must help see that they do.

If you are unable to make your purchases from a soldier of victory be sure to go to one of these other special War Bond stations to buy your extra Bonds:

BANKS AND TRUST COMPANIES

U. S. POST OFFICES

SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

BROKERAGE AND INVESTMENT FIRMS

MOTION PICTURE THEATRES

CREDIT UNIONS

CERTAIN GOVERNMENT AGENCIES

NUMEROUS CORPORATIONS AND FIRMS FOR THEIR EMPLOYEES

PRODUCTION CREDIT ASSOCIATIONS

NATIONAL FARM LOAN ASSOCIATIONS

MISCELLANEOUS BOND BOOTHS

RADIO STATIONS

RETAIL STORES

NEWSPAPERS

Remember your job in this Drive is to buy more than your share of Bonds. That's the only way you can be certain you are still backing the attack. So be ready to meet your War Bond representative with an open check book.

This sticker in your window means you have bought 4th War Loan securities.

Let's All BACK THE ATTACK!

POTTER RESERVES DROP SALEM, 70-27

East Liverpool's reserves went on a scoring spree last night to chalk up a 70 to 27 win over Salem's bewildered under-classes before the varsity contest in the Pottery City gym.

Bob Mullen and Jim Harris paced the Potters with 17 points apiece and were closely followed by Wayne Standley and his 15 markers. Kelly collected 10 points. For the Quakers Lawrence Hollinger marked up 10 points and Ben Brudery six to lead Salem scoring.

SEE WORK FOR TWO MILLION ON HOMES

CHICAGO—By building a million needed homes a year after the war, the construction industry could contribute to prosperity by supplying 2,000,000 jobs and a market for $2,000,000,000 worth of materials, the October "American Builder" asserts.

Demobilized veterans and workers from crowded areas will use war savings to demand new homes, with modern kitchens and devices and with play space for children, the magazine believes.

Small towns and rural areas should see the most construction activity, the magazine said, since most home building occurs there.

HERE IS A 50-ACRE FARM PRICED LESS THAN THE PRICE OF A GOOD CITY HOME!

This farm is located about 1 1/2 miles from Leetonia on the Leetonia-Lisbon paved road. Children hauled to school. Fruit for home use. Is improved with good 9-room house with gas, electric, and new furnace. There is a room could be used for bathroom but fixtures are not installed. Good high basement under the entire house. House sets back from the road about 200 feet which makes excellent setting for the buildings. Very good bank barn with stone wall, slate roof.

On account of the owner's wife's death, he is forced to sell and has given me a very low price of $6,000. At this price I can include what equipment he has. There is probably five or six tons of hay, walking plow, wagon and some other small tools. Now, do not put off looking at this farm as it is a rare bargain and will soon be in the hands of a new owner.

Theatre

Showing at the State for four days starting Sunday is the technical musical, "Thousands Cheer." The film brings to the screen the story of a private, Gene Kelly, who falls in love with the colonel's daughter, Kathryn Grayson, and feels his rank does not qualify him to play the part. Miss Grayson meets the soldier after she gives up her singing career with Jose Iturbi so that she can join her father, John Boles, in camp to entertain soldiers.

"In Old Oklahoma," billed at the State Thursday through Saturday, stars Albert Dekker, Martha Scott and John Wayne.

"Ride, Tenderfoot, Ride" is coming to the Grand 'n Sunday and Monday. The plot of the film revolves around Gene Autry when he becomes sole heir to a packing company. Also showing is "Crime School" starring Humphrey Bogart.

Charles Laughton and Binnie Barnes are cast in "The Man From Down Under," showing at the Grand Tuesday and Wednesday along with Richard Carlson and Donna Reed.

Closing the bill at the Grand Thursday through Saturday is a double feature, "Gildersleeve On Broadway" and "Wagon Tracks West."

SALEM, Ore.—State institution inmates received 3,000 pounds of mixed nuts, 400 cases of oranges and three tons of candy during the holiday period, the state purchasing department reported.

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

may be called upon to endure, they will be right in the front line, and their contribution to the gaining and sustaining of bridgeheads will be an indispensable one. They have been at 'action stations' for four years and they are ready."

That's the grim picture which the people of Britain see in the gathering clouds over the French coast. We here in America will do well if we try to orient ourselves to this Armageddon towards which we are rushing.

While we must prepare ourselves for great losses in men and materiel, we need not fear for the outcome of the invasion. Our airmen have done well, under exceptional circumstances, and against new methods of attack, in what the Germans describe as the greatest air battle of the war, which means of all time. They can duplicate this superiority.

The Hitlerites undoubtedly disclosed invasion tactics. They tried a new form of attack in mass formations; they bombarded our fleet with rocket guns; they claim to have used a "gliding bomb," and maybe did. From all this we have learned of Nazi tactics, and this knowledge will give us strength when the invasion comes.

Heads Conference

SANDUSKY, Jan. 15.—The Rev. Joseph H. Stein yesterday announced his appointment as superintendent of Congregational Christian churches in the Middle Atlantic conference. He has been pastor of the First Congregational church here.

DEATHS

MARTIN COSGROVE

Martin Cosgrove, 63, of 1140 Cleveland st., who has been employed by the Colonial Foundry Co. in Louisville, died of a heart attack yesterday afternoon at Louisville, where he had been living for the past two weeks.

The son of the late John and Della Cosgrove, he was born March 19, 1880, in Haslingden, England, and came to the United States at the age of two. He moved to Salem in 1893 and learned the coremaker trade at the Buckeye Engine Co. plant. He was a member of St. Paul's Catholic church and the Eagles lodge.

Surviving are his wife, Magdelene Brugger Cosgrove; one son, John S. of Salem; one daughter, Ruth E. of Salem; two grandchildren; two brothers, John of Salem and Patrick of Cleveland.

Funeral service will be held at 9 a. m. Monday at the St. Paul's Catholic church, in charge of Rev. Fr. J. Richard Gaffney. Burial will be in Grandview cemetery.

Friends may call from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9 p. m. Sunday at the Stark memorial.

ALLIED PLANES

dropped 75 tons of bombs on Alexandria in the Madag sector.

From there, the operational line swung across New Britain, with attack planes tearing into enemy positions at invaded Arawe; fighters strafing buildings and small craft at Gasmata; and Mitchells and Liberators delivering a one-two punch against Rabaul.

The Mitchells, meeting no air opposition, destroyed seven grounded planes and strafed six barges.

From Rabaul, the raiding line swung northwest toward Kavieng, where a 7,000-ton cargo ship in a convoy probably was sunk, and southeast toward Bougainville, which was bombed at both ends.

The bulk of these actions occurred Wednesday and Thursday.

Extend Liquor Plan

COLUMBUS, Jan. 15.—Ohio's eighth liquor ration period, beginning Monday, will extend through Feb. 29 and the amount of spirits allowed individual purchasers will be the same as during the current six-week span ending tomorrow night, Liquor Director Don A. Fisher announced today.

Under that setup ration card holders may buy a fifth, quart or two pints of whiskey, gin or other spirits and a "bonus" of rum, imported gin or cordial of the same amount.

RAVENNA, Jan. 15.—Walter N. Miller, city council president, was sworn in yesterday as mayor succeeding Seth B. Sloan, who died.

ARMS PRODUCTION CUTS ARE HINTED

President's Message Foretells of Deeper Cuts in Next 18 Months

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Progressively deeper cuts in arms production in the next 18 months were forecast in President Roosevelt's budget message.

Analysis of figures on war spending indicate outlay for munitions, including ships, will drop to a rate of 62 billion dollars annually in the first six months of this year.

For the subsequent 12 months—starting July 1—the rate was set at 56.7 billion dollars.

The figures represent sharp reductions from the 69.6 billion dollar rate achieved in November, the last month for which estimates on war spending are available from the War Production board.

Mr. Roosevelt noted, however, it was "extremely difficult" to estimate expenditures for armaments, since "we have excess supplies in some types of munitions, deficiencies in others." He added:

War Effort First

"We shall release for civilian production any facilities, manpower, or raw material that are no longer needed for war production, but only when we are sure that by doing so we will not impair the war effort."

Anticipated arms procurements was not laid down in so many words and figures by the President, but a table showed munitions would amount to 64 percent of the 97 billion dollar annual average rate of war spending expected for the next six months; and to 63 percent of the 90 billion dollar rate for the period July, 1944 through June, 1945.

Grains weakened at the outset today. Commission houses generally were on the selling side and there was a minimum of support from commercial interests in the wheat pit.

Wheat started 1/4-1/2 lower, May $1.70 1/2; oats were 1/4-1/2 lower, May 78 1/2, and rye was 1/4 lower to 1/4 higher, May $1.30 1/2-1/4.

BEEF SUPPLY DROP SEEN NEXT SPRING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Overall supply of meat may be relatively large at the moment, but the Agriculture department issued a report today on cattle feeding operations which indicates civilian beef supplies next spring and early summer will be reduced sharply.

The department said a survey showed 16 per cent fewer cattle on feed for market than a year ago and that these cattle will be marketed at lighter weights.

Supplies of pork are large at present, reflecting heavy seasonal marketing of hogs.

The report on cattle feeding followed a department prediction of a 16 per cent reduction in the 1944 spring pig crop—which will mean a corresponding drop in pork supplies next fall and winter.

Major factors contributing to the indicated decline in livestock production are a reduced supply of feed and a narrowing margin between livestock and feed prices.

Reductions in feeding operations in major corn belt states included Ohio, 12 per cent.

Washington Round-up

News and Views, Briefly On What's Going On In Capital

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The War department expected formal notice today that it should get out of the railroad business.

Three railroad operating brotherhoods are expected to tell the Army that, for the duration at least, the strike is called off.

The Army, of course, may decide to retain at least nominal control for the duration, or until the wage dispute is finally settled.

The firemen, conductors and switchmen, who signed a contract with the carriers yesterday, say their agreement does not bar them from asking for higher wages during the war.

Agreements with 43 short line railroads remain to be signed.

TAXES, AS ALWAYS

The senate went into an unusual Saturday session today in an effort to approve the new tax bill, which provides $2,275,000,000 in increased levies. The senators meant to dispose of the measure yesterday but several members took up most of the session with speeches unrelated to taxation.

Among the issues due for consideration today are these: Senators Lucas (D-Ill) and Clark (D-Mo) favor striking out a house provision requiring labor unions and other non-profit organizations to file financial returns to the treasury; the proposed doubling of the levy on amusement admissions is opposed by several senators; and amendments are expected; Senator Overton (D-La.) has proposed an amendment to provide that whisky may be held tax-free in bonded warehouses only four years instead of eight.

MERCHANT SEAMEN'S PROBLEM

The CIO Maritime union served notice it intends to appeal to congress to obtain for merchant seamen the same mustering out pay benefits which members of the army, navy and marines get.

Bjorne Halling, executive secretary of the CIO maritime committee, said merchant seamen had performed just as dangerous duties as members of the armed forces and faced just as great a post-war employment problem.

ELSEWHERE IN THE CAPITAL

Advocates of a federal war budget predicted its passage despite growing congressional favor for a states' control system of service voting in the coming presidential elections.

Seek British Pilot Who Parachuted Into River

MARIETTA, Jan. 15.—The free-clogged Ohio river was being dragged today for the body of a British officer who parachuted from his plane before it crashed and burned on a hillside near Grandview, a small Washington county community.

A companion British officer landed safely with his parachute near Sistersville, W. Va.

The plane developed trouble yesterday afternoon as the men were flying from Wright field, Dayton, O., to Bolling field, Washington, D. C., in an army twin-engine trainer.

Lone Plane Drops Bomb On Theater, Killing 7

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Jan. 15.—A toll of seven dead and 31 injured was taken by a bomb dropped into a crowded suburban movie house last night by a lone enemy air raider which darted apparently undetected through London's bristling anti-aircraft defenses.

Those at the scene said it was only thanks to a kind fate that there was no repetition of the tragic dance hall bombing of Nov. 8 which took a big toll of merry-makers. About 3,000 persons filled the theater.

Although the direct hit on the theater caused only minor damage a companion bomb reduced an adjoining department store to a mass of rubble.

No alert and no gun fire preceded the bombing and there was speculation the Germans may have developed a new type of near-noiseless plane. A sound of plane engines was heard only a moment before the whistle of the falling bombs.

NEW HIGH ALTITUDE FLYING SUIT HAILED

DAYTON, Jan. 15.—The Army Air Force materiel command at Wright field disclosed development of a new high-altitude winterized flying suit which includes features suggested by fliers returning from combat zones and others still in the thick of the war.

Gloves that can be fitted with extra wooden layers as the cold increases, but still retain their flexibility to allow for handling of delicate controls and instruments are new, as are helmets fitted with goggles, microphones, ear-phones, oxygen mask and head gear.

The outfit is completed by the addition of Eskimo shoes.

Asks Name Change

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The duties of Miss Anna Irene Szablowska, 23, as an expediter at the General Electric Co. here, require her to sign her name 300 times a day. In a petition to County Judge Frank P. Malpass to shorten her name to Sabie, Miss Szablowska said her present name is cumbersome and has caused considerable confusion, not to mention her own embarrassment.

Add Russian To List

ITHACA, N. Y.—The faculty of the college of arts and sciences at Cornell university has voted to accept Russian among the prescribed foreign languages to satisfy language requirements for an A. B. degree. The action was taken in recognition of the interest in Russia since the invasion of that country by Germany and because the faculty anticipated a demand for Russian-speaking persons in the postwar period.

Sold Her Child?

Sale of one of her five children for $50 is charged against Mrs. Harriet Dale Horton, 32, above, who has been indicted in San Francisco for violation of the federal Dyer act. F. B. I. agents said that Mrs. Horton deserted her husband and four children to elope from their Hammond, Ind., home with another man. She sold fifth child to a childless couple, according to the F. B. I. The youth, whose body will be sent to Ansonia for burial, worked on a Mercer county farm for the Stober boy's father, Rufus.

Hand spent more than 14 years a ward of the state. His parents separated when he was 18 months old, and he was in the Darke county children's home from that time until he was 14.

At 15 he stole an automobile and was placed in the Lancaster Boys' Industrial school for 18 months.

Released last April he stole another automobile. A Toledo federal judge paroled him to Rufus Stober.

14 In County Pass Exams Held or Notaries Public

LISBON, Jan. 15.—Fourteen persons from Columbiana county successfully passed notary public examinations conducted in the courtroom here Friday by Att'y George L. Lafferty of Lisbon and Joseph Cooper of East Liverpool, examiners appointed by Judge Joel H. Sharp.

The successful applicants: N. K. Bowling and Lucille Neighbor of Lisbon; Adeline Elden, Janice Brookman and Betty Leake, East Liverpool; Keith Hess, Eleanor Sokola, Roberta Godard and Mrs. C. E. Kridler, Salem; Teresa McCue, Betty Helt and Gertrude Butera, Leetonia; Ina Hartford of East Palestine, and R. E. Taggart, Wellsville.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—A toll of seven dead and 31 injured was taken by a bomb dropped into a crowded suburban movie house last night by a lone enemy air raider which darted apparently undetected through London's bristling anti-aircraft defenses.

Those at the scene said it was only thanks to a kind fate that there was no repetition of the tragic dance hall bombing of Nov. 8 which took a big toll of merry-makers. About 3,000 persons filled the theater.

Although the direct hit on the theater caused only minor damage a companion bomb reduced an adjoining department store to a mass of rubble.

No alert and no gun fire preceded the bombing and there was speculation the Germans may have developed a new type of near-noiseless plane. A sound of plane engines was heard only a moment before the whistle of the falling bombs.

NEW HIGH ALTITUDE FLYING SUIT HAILED

DAYTON, Jan. 15.—The Army Air Force materiel command at Wright field disclosed development of a new high-altitude winterized flying suit which includes features suggested by fliers returning from combat zones and others still in the thick of the war.

Gloves that can be fitted with extra wooden layers as the cold increases, but still retain their flexibility to allow for handling of delicate controls and instruments are new, as are helmets fitted with goggles, microphones, ear-phones, oxygen mask and head gear.

The outfit is completed by the addition of Eskimo shoes.

Asks Name Change

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The duties of Miss Anna Irene Szablowska, 23, as an expediter at the General Electric Co. here, require her to sign her name 300 times a day. In a petition to County Judge Frank P. Malpass to shorten her name to Sabie, Miss Szablowska said her present name is cumbersome and has caused considerable confusion, not to mention her own embarrassment.

Add Russian To List

ITHACA, N. Y.—The faculty of the college of arts and sciences at Cornell university has voted to accept Russian among the prescribed foreign languages to satisfy language requirements for an A. B. degree. The action was taken in recognition of the interest in Russia since the invasion of that country by Germany and because the faculty anticipated a demand for Russian-speaking persons in the postwar period.

RAIL STRIKE

until the non-operating dispute also is settled, although Gen. Brehon B. Somervell has cited only the operating case as the bar to termination of his custodianship. He said at least two of the three brotherhoods—firemen, conductors, and switchmen—had not cancelled their strike but merely postponed it for the duration of government operation.

The brotherhood chiefs asserted a strike voted by the rank and file remained a live issue while the dispute, which provoked it remained unsettled.

Actually, the non-operating union chiefs could set another strike date although this is considered unlikely. When they called off their Dec. 30 strike they said only that "we are withdrawing approval heretofore granted the employees to stop work."

The agreement between the carriers and the firemen, conductors, and switchmen carries the same money benefits which the President, as arbitrator, awarded the engineers and trainmen three weeks ago. Of the 9 cents awarded, 4 cents is a basic increase, and 5 cents is in lieu of overtime or away-from-home expenses. The 5 cents, however, also goes into the basic rates.

The firemen, conductors, and switchmen, however, believe their contracts eliminate a "freeze" they say is contained in the contracts covering the trainmen and engineers. They are prohibited from bringing up overtime, expense and vacations during the war, but are not specifically prevented from asking higher basic rates or seeking changes in other rules.

Solons In Hospital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Two Ohio representatives, Republicans Jones and McGregor, were in Naval hospital today.

Jones injured his foot in a fall from the steps of a train at Lima, O., and had to have an operation several weeks ago. His secretary said a second minor operation now is necessary. McGregor's secretary said he would be on his feet next week after making unusually speedy recovery from an abdominal operation. The operation was his second within a year.
